

COLCHAMIRO FAMILY NEWSLETTER

A Periodical Devoted To Colchamiro News Around The Globe

Issue #1 Volume #1

Spring, 1987

WELCOME TO OUR FIRST ISSUE

This is our first issue and attempt at publishing, a rather special and unique Newsletter. There are many Newsletters on and about Investments; Ecology; Horse Racing and Dieting, but alas, none to date on that famous family, The famous and proud Colchamiro family has a long history that should continue to grow. (I've stopped in case you're wondering!)

I guess first is to let you know that we have a new telephone number. This will save you time in checking with the operator for it. We can be reached at [redacted] This number will also be good in case you want me to stop sending you this Newsletter. (I will of course accept mail threats.)

Some of the things I hope this will do is help bring some of the history of the family to those who are the second and maybe third generation of this famous clan. With so many brothers and sisters, cousins and more cousins, it is sometimes hard to keep track. Please let me know some news that I may include in this for all the family to know. Please send your information to the address listed below.

Well the big news for me is Eric is now listening to the soft sounds of Army life in his new post, Seoul, South Korea. He left a few weeks ago and already has called to say he can't wait to return. Alison, his beautiful wife, writes almost daily. He would certainly like to receive mail and if you care to write, his address is:

Eric Colchamiro

I am sure he would like to hear from you and hear what is happening over here. I know the music quiz he heard over there was, "How much is that doggy in the window?" The correct answer is 12 cents a pound.

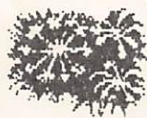

Meantime further in the Midwest, his brother Ethan, nearing 12 years old, has decided upon a career (and at this early age) of Rock N' Roll. I guess it is best summed up as, different kind of weapons.

This is not to say, of course, that the Women have no interesting news but that is for the next page.

Randie Ellen

The big news from Randie was just announced. She and Charles will be married on July 4th, 1987. The wedding will be just for immediate family members at his father's home in Orlando, Fla.

The other news was their move from Tallahassee to Orlando. They both have great opportunities in their work and Orlando seems to be the best place for them.

Randie has started her own business, Central Florida Micro Support. She helps Doctors and Dentists with their software and has a big practice of her own. She has recently been travelling about the state as her practice grows.

She started out working in a Doctor's office. She did all the usual things, such as greeting patients, keeping records and the pleasant things that young ladies in white coats do. While all that is fine, records and greeting people, she decided that she had seen enough pills and decided to look around for another job.

She saw an ad for a Computer Software company looking for someone to test medical software. Hark, she said, let me try. And try she did, first working with the software to test it from a users point of view. Then she started taking call from all over the United States asking about the software. As she became better at it, they asked her to be Product Manager.

The rest is history as she moved to Orlando, they wanted her to be a consultant and thus Central Florida Micro Support.

Tracy Lynn

The new Miss Tracy Lynn is on her way to fulfilling several goals. I just received a post card from her and her pants. It read, "Hi Dad, I'm a size 12 now!" She has really lost a bit of weight and now is readying herself for school in the fall.

She has been working in a dentist's office while saving for her school. I think she has really hit the jack pot with these goals and we're all proud of her.

Dawn Robin

This young lady is also heading for school this fall. She has been working hard and has recently purchased (and now trying to sell) a sports car. I guess these M-TV Spring Break shows have been getting to her.

Of course, once sold she will resort to other types of transportation while at school. She will major in finance, which may, we hope, allow her to trade the school bus for a sports car. She really has been working hard and I'm sure she will do well in school.

Mom & Dad

They are doing well in sunny Florida. Plenty of vistors, I hear. Dad recently met a doctor with a sense of humor. The sign in the office said, "Fry now, Pay later!" Dad is doing fine having had some skin cancer removed and now wears a hat in the sun. Mom is doing great and keeping busy with all us children, (yup, children).

Well, how about it? Had enough? Or, do you want more? Please let me know and send some news for me to print, it is really All the News that Is Fit to Print.

Now about this thing I'm doing, The Newsletter. It is about all the Colchamiro families around the globe. I thought we could involve you in the interesting facts about the family so the young people will know all the great stories about their family. I was also thinking of Trivia type games, such as, "What number came up when Aunt Sarah had the dice removed from her nose?" Or, "How many painting has Uncle Oscar done so far?" And, "How many transfers did Uncle Morris give out during his career?" Also, "What was the most amount of tires Uncle Nat sold in a month?"
